

Repository server

The repository server is the core of Daisy. It provides the pure content management functionality without GUI (graphical user interface).

The main purpose of the repository is managing documents¹.

The repository server consists of a core and some non-essential extension components that add additional functionality. The repository can be accessed by a variety of client applications (such as web applications, command-line tools, desktop applications, ...) through its programming interfaces².

1. daisy:17-cd \(Documents\)
2. daisy:375-cd \(Programming interfaces\)